

Notice on data protection

We take protection of your personal information seriously. In compliance with the European data protection regulation (GDPR), personal information will only be collected and processed on this web platform to the extent that it is technically necessary to assign a personal code in order to facilitate convenient usage of the CCAM Self-Assessment tool.

Voluntary Participation

Your participation in the CCAM Self-Assessment tool is entirely voluntary.

Procedures and risks

Any personal or sensitive data collected will be processed fairly, lawfully and compatible with the initial purpose. Moreover, you do not have to answer any question that might make you feel uncomfortable.

Confidentiality

All data collected through this online survey will remain confidential. The data you provided will be stored only with regard to the answers provided. Nobody will be named at the analysis of data.

Data storage

Only your answers to the questions will be collected, no data will be collected automatically (such as geo-location). All responses will be stored on a Rupprecht Consult server for five years, counting from the day you filled in the survey. The data is stored on servers in the EU within the scope of the GDPR. The data may be made available to third parties for scientific analysis in an anonymous form, which does not allow conclusions to be drawn about individual towns, municipalities, districts or institutions, in compliance with this data protection notice.

Sharing the Results

The results of a statistical analysis of the self-assessment responses can be published in publicly available reports and events and used as communication material. The results of the analysis are published in aggregated form only, without the possibility of drawing conclusions about individual cities, municipalities, districts or institutions.

Copyright
